Soothing Sound. No Noise.

November 13, 2017 - by Melody Wren

There are many different noise machines to choose from, but not many small and portable enough to bring with you. Promising “a better night’s sleep and sound masking through science”, the Lectro Fan micro is tiny enough to toss in your case if you are predicting a noisy location. We have all been there: hotel rooms too close to the ice machine or elevator or wedding parties getting out of hand. The worst night I ever experienced was one at a hotel advertised as ‘near Paddington Station’. If only I knew it was on top of the station, I’d never have booked it. The trains travel all night long and besides the sound, the vibration was overwhelming. If only I had my noise cancelling machine with me. This particular model was recommended to me to cancel out the noise of a snoring partner so I do use it at home and now I will certainly take it with me wherever I go, even if I am alone.

This machine generates twenty different sounds with upward facing speakers that fill the room. It includes ten fan sounds and ten white noise variants, precise volume control and has a 60-, 120-, and 180-minute timer.

This unit includes an AC adapter but can also run off a USB power source and is available in white/silver or black.
