Columbia's Thermarator™ Fleece Glove are soft and super warm, quick-wicking and feature a thermal reflective lining to amp up the heat keeping powers of the 180-gram fleece. Stretch in the wrist makes them easy to get on and off; a silicone pattern on the palm provides great grip. Fashionable they aren't, but I chose Eve (purple) to assure myself that they looked as good as they felt. There are clips to keep the pair together for fear of losing one, reflective piping for night time vision, and the omni-wick evaporation feature that means they dry fast when you are splashed when you least expect it. What's important in a glove is constant comfort. You can keep these on while rummaging in your knapsack, fixing your glasses, adjusting your hat. They even have the flexibility to keep up while you are being active on or in a boat.
